

Communication across a Lifetime: Finding our best voice

The Saskatchewan Association for Community Living (SACL) is pleased to work with the Speech Language Network (SLN) to offer an educational presentation about finding your best voice. Kara Broks of the Speech Language Network will provide us with an understanding of the tools necessary to have successful communication across a lifetime.

Consider attending this presentation if you are interested in the following:

- learning more about the speech language services and supports offered in the Saskatoon area
- health care coverage and funding options for Speech Pathology
- You want to learn new skills to communicate better
- supporting a family member with finding their best voice
- finding your best voice
- learning about the importance of communication over the lifetime

Also, learn more about the provincial supports and programs offered by the SACL. Learn about the SACL's family network, education and transition supports, self-advocacy and the youth programs.

This event is hosted by the Saskatchewan Association for Community Living (SACL) in collaboration with Kara Broks, Speech Language Pathologist & Director of the Speech Language Network. The SACL is a non-profit, family based organization that supports individuals with intellectual disabilities and their families in Saskatchewan.
